Clive's Comments

May is here and we are at the end of autumn, 6 or so weeks and it's the shortest day of the year and we start the road to summer. We have finished the show and festival season and also the bulk of the public holidays. In Melbourne there was a lot of discussion about penalty rates and their affection the hospitality industry. A number of very successful Victorian restaurants don't open on these major public holidays as they simply cannot afford to. In Victoria, Easter Saturday is a public holiday, the Sunday isn't and the Monday is. This is a historical anomaly to give workers the extra day off, as Sunday was traditionally a non work day. We had the ALP and the Unions calling for the Sunday to also be a holiday. They talk about the need for all the workers to be able to spend time with their families or get 'paid' for not being able to do so. They also want to be able to go to the Clive's Comments Continued... footy, go to the cinemas, go on holiday and get service and not 'be ripped off'. It is time they understood that there are also a large number of small businesses who also want to have a break. With current penalty rates many small businesses have to either close or farm the work out to family and managerial staff. I suppose they aren't really workers. In 21st century Australia there are many people who prefer or at least are suited to working on weekends and holiday days. My belief is that penalty rates should only cut in after a worker has done 30 hours or by negotiation. A premium is warranted and fair but not 2, 3 or 4 times normal pay levels. There has been a lot of media discussion on the affect of penalty rates in the hospitality sector but minimal discussion about our sector. We employ a large number of people and are predominantly a small business sector. I spent many hours developing our current award and negotiating with the AWU to get the fairest deal for our industry. I feel that our associations need to be more vocal and more active in pushing to have penalty rates reviewed and reduced for all parts of the nursery industry. We have our own award and should be able to do this independently of other sectors.

2014 has started with a relatively mild summer and a pleasant, if a little dry autumn. A warm and not too wet winter would set us up for a busy spring. The economy has some life and the surge in 'grow your own food' has created a new generation of avid gardeners.

Anecdotally we are seeing a reduction in the average age of people buying plants and a lot more interest from the 25 to 40 age group. As can be seen in some of our highlighted plants this month, colour is back in the garden. People want to be wowed with great floral displays, they want to be able to smell their garden and taste the plants. Let's give them this in spring 2014.
