Clive's Comments

March is here. This usually means the end of the hot summer weather and respite from the annual fire worries. For our industry it is the start of the garden show season; Australian Open Garden Scheme annual fair. A must for all keen local Melbourne gardeners with a passion for interesting plants. Then there is MIFGS which is becoming one of the world's top garden shows. These are followed by several other specialist shows. This is repeated in most major Australian cities. Autumn really is one of the highlights of our calendar. Plants look good, there is a lot happening in the garden and the gardening public just feels good. We are just a bit busy as we also have our Herb and Chilli Festival in mid March. This is becoming a real foodies event with food styles from around the world stimulating everyone's taste buds. Last time we had a prolonged downturn in retail activity was the nineties. It was...

Clive's Comments Continued... the paint and home renovation sectors that lead us out of the doldrums. Talking to industry professionals and reading the various finance journals it seems the paint, hardware and kitchen sectors are on the move. With good weather conditions predicted we should be in for a busy few months. After a long period of low activity we must get people to 'fall in love' with gardening again. We need to find ways of helping our customers feel that they must buy plants on a regular basis. We need them to feel that spending dollars on herbs, veggies, fruit trees and perennials is a must. More important than the gym, the video store and even the shoe shop. We must get them back into the 'habit' of gardening. Gardening is good for the health, good for the wallet, good for the house and good for the environment. It is a message we need to sell. "Hit the G-spot, get gardening"

We are a green industry and are different from most other sectors in the way we market our products and the way our products are perceived. Most of our customers 'want' to buy our plants we just need to give them an excuse. We also need to reed the trend as we are also a fashion industry. 5 years ago strappy leaved plants were the rage. Gardeners could not get enough, then all of a sudden perennials came back in to fashion and Cordylines etc were hard to give away. What is next? Edibles are the flavour of the month at the moment. We also feel that floral displays are on the up. Gardeners aren't looking for one plant to look good all year but a series of plants that look fantastic for a short period every year. Plants like Hydrangea, Hellebore, Lavender, Rosemary and Penstemon. We think that they are looking for plants that look great for a month or so or that provide an edible/usable function in the home garden. Let's work out how to give them what they want. We are the 'experts' and have decades of knowledge, we should use it. No-one else can or will help us.
